Exception To the Axiom

Editorial By Bruce Blossat

If President Eisenhower follows
the expected course and declines to run again next year, then he will have a chance to cast some pretty big doubt on the worth of an old Washington political axiom.

The rule in question is the one that says a President who makes known his intention not to seek re-election promptly loses his major political influence both with Congress and with his own party.

There is considerable reason to doubt that this will apply in Mr.
Eisenhower's case. There is, indeed, reason to doubt that it ever applies automatically. It seems rather to be a matter of individuals.

Mr. Eisenhower, as we all know,
is tremendously popular with the American voters. Nothing short of war or depression is likely to reduce his standing measurably. Barring those calamities, one may fairly predict that his popularity will continue high to the end of his term.

This will not be something that either Congress or the Republican party will be able to ignore. The President's high status with voters
gives him leverage that he can employ to help push his program thru
the legislative roadblocks.

His popularity plus his position
as top party man makes it extremely risky for the average Republican politician to stand out against the President so long as he holds office. Voters who like the President and what he stands for might take a glum view of the GOP lawmaker who declined to support him.

In addition, the record Mr. Eisenhower makes in the White House is a key part of the record everyone in his party must run on. To separate oneself markedly from
that record is to seem to repudiate
it.

All this takes on perhaps especial meaning in his case when it is remembered that the kind of performance he has been delivering has found high favor with the electorate. His stress on peace, and his evident success in exploring
new avenues toward it, has lifted
him to a peak of esteem.

In the view of many, the President almost surely will see this quest harder than ever if January, 1957, is the limit of his tenure. For this has always been his deepest concern as Chief Executive. And he has enough of a sense of history to want to leave his mark in the most crucial field of all.

If he thus dedicates himself in the months ahead, Mr. Eisenhower will be a very hard man to be against. More than ever before he could place himself above narrow partisanship, devoted to the national well-being and safety.

Far from losing his influence in Washington, he might find it greater than at any time in his entire
term.

DREW PEARSON Says:
Dixon-Yates Causes Backstage
Hassle Inside Ike Administration;
Two Criminal Conspiracies
May Be Involved; Administration Took Amazing Steps
To Hide Adolph Wenzell, The Inside Operator.

WASHINGTON, — A lengthy backstage hassle has been taking place between two top Eisenhower
appointees over whether to pay
Dixon-Yates approximately $5-$500,000 for their alleged out-of-pocket expenses when the government canceled the Dixon-Yates
contract.

Admiral Lewis Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, ex-partner in the Kuhn-
Loeb banking firm, wanted it paid.
A former White House secretary to Herbert Hoover, the man who really sold the administration on Dixon-Yates, Strauss had rammed the contract through even when his own AEC voted against it.

However, Controller General Joseph Campbell, another Ike appointee, said no.

Strauss and Campbell haggled
for some time. But the man who handled Columbia University's finances under "Professor" Ike in New York stood pat, even though he had once voted for the Dixon-Yates contract when he was a member of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Campbell's refusal to budge was
why Admiral Strauss came out and said publicly that the government would not compensate Dixon-Yates.

CRIMINAL CONSPIRACY?

In the back of the controller
general's mind is the possibility that two criminal conspiracies
may lurk in the background
of the Dixon-Yates deal.

No. 1 is the suppression of a rival bid against Dixon-Yates. Walter Von Tresekov of the Hanover
National Bank attempted to bid.
However, when he tried to get the prominent engineering firm of Gibbs and Hill to work up plans
for him, he got word from Gibbs
and Hill that pressure had been brought to bear and they could not cooperate. Suppression of competition in making government bids
is against the law.

No. 2 is the way Adolph Wenz-
zell's presence inside the Budget Bureau was covered up. Wenzell was working for the First Boston Corp., which was to do the Dixon-Yates financing. Yet he was also called by Budget Director Hughes
to work inside the Budget Bureau
in advising the government.

This was possibly a more flagrant conflict of interest than that of Air Secretary Talbott or Building Administrator Peter Strobel,
both of whom resigned.

AMAZING COVER-UP

Wenzell's presence inside the Budget Bureau was concealed in the most flagrant manner.

When I got wind of it in the summer of 1954, inquiries at the Budget Bureau brought only a run-around. I then suggested to Senator Hill of Alabama that he query
the Budget Bureau officially. He did so and got a bald, bare-faced lie.

New Device to Check Eyesight In Driver Exams

CHICAGO (UP)—Applicants for drivers' licenses in Illinois no longer will read a wall chart. Henceforth their eyesight will be checked
by a gadget called the Ortho-Rater.
Secretary of State Charles F.
Carpentier said the device has rendered the wall chart examination obsolete.

Illinois is the first state to adopt the machine, Carpentier said.

"Highway safety begins with your eyes," he said.

The gadget resembles a stereo-opticon. It's an adaptation of a machine which has been used to test the eyesight of more than 12
million workers in various industries.

Can't Cheat Machine
"There were lots of ways to cheat in the wall chart test," Carpentier said. "But you can't beat the machine."

The subject peers through dual eyepieces at slides inserted by the operator.

For people who object to reading
letters there's a slide of a street
intersection, complete with red light, stop sign, no parking sign
and a one-way street sign on the far corner.

Another slide consists of red,
yellow and green circles, designed to determine whether the applicant
is color blind.

There's also the inevitable row
of letters.

The Ortho-Rater's manufacturer
said it tests all the important functions of vision, including sharpness, depth perception, color perception and ability to recognize vital roadside cues.

It also measures the ability of the eyes to function together as a team.

A Fairer Test
Carpentier said he expects all
driver testing stations in the state
to be equipped with Ortho-Raters
by January.

"It's a much fairer test," he said.
"The light is always constant and in that respect it gives the applicant a break."

"In some of our testing stations
the light is so poor I wonder how anyone could read the wall chart," Carpentier has a personal interest in highway safety.

"I do a lot of driving around the state," he said. "I've already got 64,000 miles on a car I bought only last year."

"And I've seen a lot of accidents
on my trips. A lot of hellish messes."

I then suggested to Sidney Davis, counsel for the Senate investigating committee that he ask for Budget personnel records. He did so; also got a lie.

I tried to talk to ex-Budget Director Joe Dodge. He hung up the telephone.

Finally in late February 1955, after the Democrats secured control of Congress, plus subpoena powers, Wenzell's presence was finally admitted.

Even then, none other than President Eisenhower himself
steadfastly maintained Wenzell had had nothing to do with Dixon-Yates.

IKE'S AMAZING REMARKS

On June 29, Eisenhower in his press conference blandly stated:
"Mr. Wenzell was never called in or asked a single thing about the Dixon-Yates contract. He was brought in to—as a technical adviser in the very early days when none of us here knew about the bookkeeping methods of TVA or anything else."

On July 5, this writer told how the Atomic Energy records of Jan.
20 showed Wenzell had conferred
at the commission with Admiral Strauss, its chairman, and with Edgar Dixon, partner in the Dixon-Yates combine. I showed that a notation was in the files of the AEC that Wenzell had left by "the back door carrying a large envelope."

Next day, July 6, Ike was again
asked about Wenzell.

"On the basis of what you have been told about the role of Adolph Wenzell in this Dixon-Yates contract, do you regard that role as proper?" asked Charles Bartlett of the Chattanooga Times.

"Indeed yes," was the President's reply.

BUDGET BUREAU RUNAROUND

For the record, it might be interesting to recall statements published in this column over a year ago—Aug. 11, 1954—about the Wenz-zell cover-up.

"One of the best-kept secrets in Washington," this column stated
on Aug. 11, 1954, "is who inside
the Budget Bureau prepared the Dixon-Yates plans for a government-financed private power plant,
with no competitive bidding, in the Tennessee valley area.

"The plan was worked out inside the Budget Bureau, and it is reported that a public utilities
'expert' came in from the outside.
Worked a few weeks with the Budget Bureau, then went to work for Dixon-Yates."

"Obviously this information has nothing to do with the security of the nation and, under White House
rules, should be made public.
However, here is a play-by-play
account of what happened when questions were asked at the Budget Bureau:

"We don't have a list of the people who worked on the Dixon-Yates plan," stated Virginia De Pury, Budget Bureau spokesman.

"Could you draw up a list?"

she was asked.

"No, that would be too much trouble."

"We'll be happy to do the work
for you if you will simply authorize us to make the necessary inquiries," this column countered.

"This is a public building," Miss De Pury snapped. "You can go around and ask any questions
you wish."

"If you will let me say it is all right for them to talk, I can get the names without troubling
you further."

"Miss De Pury refused.

"Are these names a matter of national security," she was asked further.

"I don't know."

"It may be embarrassing to release the names of those who worked on the Dixon-Yates plan,
but it certainly isn't a military secret," the lady was further pressed. "Under the President's directive, non-security information is supposed to be open to the public."

"Why don't you ask President Eisenhower?" she suggested angrily.

"In the end this column appealed directly to Budget Boss Rowland Hughes for the names. His reply was: 'No comment.'"

Revenue Department Admits Many Cities Disappointed in Tax Revenues

SPRINGFIELD (UP)—The Illinois Revenue Department today
conceded many cities levying the new city sales tax may be "disappointed" in revenues collected.

But it said this disappointment
is due to clarification of the location of taxpayers and not to the department's failure to collect the tax from retailers.

Champaign and Urbana city officials had suggested those cities might not be getting revenues on sales made by chain stores. Local chain stores were not among retailers on a list furnished to the city by the Illinois Revenue Department.

But State Revenue Director Richard J. Lyons said the chain stores paid the retailer's occupational tax
under a rule requiring these firms
be registered according to their principal office.

A Big Headache

Lyons said while the chain store
is then "coded" according to location of its principal office, its tax receipts must be broken down to show the amount due from each local outlet.

Breaking down the figures of these big firms is one of the biggest headaches we've got," he admitted, "and we're getting out a letter right now asking them to simplify as much as possible the form of showing sales taxes payable for each location."

But he said the department has been making certain city assessing sales taxes gets its part of the chain store total.

Lyons said the lower-than-expected city sales tax returns are probably due to "elimination of fringe
area businesses."

He explained that before passage of the 1955 city sales tax law, when it was not necessary to clearly locate retailers according to corporate limits, the department drew up totals according to postmarks.

Each Retailer Has Number

"So if a retailer just outside the city sent and received his mail
through the city post office, he was included in the statistics for that post office," Lyons said.

"Now we have a coding system
according to county and corporate limits, with each retailer having a number. Thus, a merchant on the Elmwood Park side of Harlem Avenue in Chicago may get his mail

through a Chicago postmark but his code number shows he's in Elmwood Park," he said.

Lyons said the department sometime ago asked city administrations levying the sales tax to check each retailer within their limits to make certain his code number
showed his location within the city. He said a great many cities
had reported on this check.

The state department collects the ½-cent city sales tax along with the 2½-cent state tax, charging the municipalities 6 per cent of the ½-cent tax for collection expenses.

McDougal was appointed as a Republican member of the IPAC in 1954 and reappointed last Jan. 17. He said there was "no hard feeling" connected with the resignation.

"The law specifically states that a certain number of Democrats and Republicans must be on the commission," he explained. "Obviously, I'm going to vote Democratic in 1956."

Gov. William Stratton was expecting McDougal's resignation. He said at a news conference that McDougal's other commitments probably would keep him too busy to continue on the commission.

Bullets Fired Into Newspaper Plant

GRANITE CITY, Ill. (AP)—Publisher C. E. Townsend of the Granite City Press-Record today offered a reward of $1,000 for information about who fired three bullets into his newspaper plant.

The bullets struck the newspaper office, which was unoccupied at the time, late Sunday night.

Townsend, who noted that his newspaper had been campaigning against commercial gambling and hoodlums in the area, called the shots "compliments."

His mother lives in an apartment overhead but was not hurt. The bullet slugs were recovered by police.

To Discuss One-Shot Salk Polio Vaccine Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's top polio authorities have been summoned to a conference here Wednesday to consider recommending a one-shot vaccination program to make present Salk supplies go farther.

The present program calls for three injections over an eight-month period. To reach as many children as possible before the new polio season, many experts believe that the schedule should be cut back temporarily to only one shot. The Health, Education and Welfare Department announced that Dr. Jonas E. Salk, developer of the vaccine, members of the government vaccine advisory committee, and representatives of medical and public health organizations will attend the meeting.

The experts are expected to submit their recommendations to U. S. Surgeon General Leonard W. Scheele this week. He will make his decision public as soon as possible, a spokesman said.

From the beginning of the inoculation program, officials have recommended three shots to give the maximum protection. They said the second injection should be given four to six weeks after the first and the third injection about seven months after that.

Millions of children, however, received only one shot during the mass inoculation program this summer. And extensive studies indicated that the one shot provided a great deal of protection against paralytic polio.

The new polio season gets underway this spring. Since millions of children still haven't received any shots and there isn't enough vaccine to go around, many experts believe a one-shot program is the only way to provide a degree of protection for the maximum number of children.

The other point of view, held by some, is that the initial two shots, at least, must be given in quick succession to provide children with the best protection. They question whether this established program should be altered.

Tennessee Used As Pawn for Red Recognition

HONG KONG UP—Richard R. Tenneson, the 22-year-old former soldier of Alden, Minn., who turned his back on the United States, appeared today to have become a small pawn in a big Chinese Communist game—that of winning U. S. recognition.

Tenneson, who held the rank of private first class in the U. S. Army forces fighting Communist aggression in Korea, was one of 22 American soldiers who announced at end of the fighting they did not wish to return home.

Peiping was reported ready to release him on Dec. 1. He was reported at the border then but he never crossed into the British crown colony.

Political sources in Hong Kong believed the Reds were insisting that he be turned over to the American Red Cross rather than the British—another step, if only a small one, along Peiping's difficult road to international recognition.

Diplomats here were leery of the precedent. In the past the British have given the Americans permission to do the honors when Americans were released by the Chinese. Reds even though such an act infringed on British authority at the border.

This is especially true as regards Tenneson. He has no legal status in Hong Kong and only the American consulate general can determine if he is still considered an American citizen and issues the necessary travel documents.

There were indications but no proof that Tenneson has been having a hard time on the Chinese side of the border. There were reports of a "European" sleeping in a boxcar one night. There have been other reports of a "European" sleeping wherever he could.

She explained the making of ceramics and the materials used in telling of her training at a school in Tennessee when she first began her hobby.

No Federal Offense In Till Slaying, Stratton Advised

SPRINGFIELD UP—Gov. William G. Stratton Monday released a letter from U. S. Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell stating there was no cause for federal action in the slaying of 14-year-old Chicago Negro Emmett Till in Mississippi.

Stratton had asked Brownell to take any possible federal action in bringing the boy's killers to justice. Two Mississippi trials for murder and kidnapping had resulted in acquittal of two accused men.

But Brownell replied "no federal offense is involved." He said an investigation was made to see if state lines were crossed in the kidnapping or if any local law officer was involved in the slaying.

If either of these things had taken place, Brownell said the federal government could have stepped in. But he said it appeared the Till boy had been kept in the state by his kidnapers, "private" persons who killed him and threw his weighted body in a river.

Texas Station Televises Murder Trial

WACO, Tex. 12-6—Television Station KWTX-TV broadcast live
today the murder trial of Harry
L. Washburn, 38, who is charged with murdering his wealthy, former mother-in-law by booby-
trapping her automobile.

It was believed to be the first television live in the United States. M. N. Bostick, manager of KWTX-TV, said his station will broadcast the trial as long as it lasts, without even a break to identify the station.

Washburn is accused of attaching a bomb to the ignition of the automobile of his mother-in-law,
Mrs. Helen Harris Weaver, in San Angelo, Tex., last January 19. It exploded when she pressed on the start.

Gov't Reluctant To Help Solve Water Problems

WASHINGTON 12-6—The second annual Watershed Conference was told today that the federal government has assumed a "reluctant
bride-groom" role in solving water problems.

A committee headed by Gordon
Zimmerman, local representative of the National Grange, reported that "not a shovel full of earth"
has been turned on watershed projects authorized in 1954.

Presidential Asst. Sherman Adams had told delegates Monday night the government will be a "useful servant" in helping solve the problem, but that increased federal funds ultimately would mean "control of the whole economy."

A second committee, headed by former Gov. Robert Crosby of Nebraska, said 20 state legislatures this year authorized cooperation with the federal government in watershed development. Some,
it said, also authorized state financial assistance.

Crosby's committee pointed out that a 1954 federal act putting up
money for the upstream water conservation projects requires as a minimum that local agencies have
state authority to build, operate
and maintain the projects.

"This response of the states," Crosby said, "appears to be a record for legislative actions in a single year directed toward cooperation with the federal government in development program."

Zimmerman's committee reported that local governments have improved and are managing some 1,300 watersheds. But there are no comprehensive plans for another 14,700, it said.

The group complained about restrictions on the size of reservoirs
in watershed projects, and about
requirements that farmers contribute to the cost of flood control
structures which are financed entirely by the government under army engineer programs.

The two-day conference is sponsored by 25 farm, business and labor organizations.

La Prensa Freed Of Last Shackles By Peron Regime

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina 12-6—La Prensa was freed today of the last shackles of Peronism preparatory to its resumption of publication as a free and independent newspaper under its legitimate
owners, the Paz family.

A Labor Ministry decree wrote
the end to La Prensa's episode as an organ of the deposed regime of Dictator Juan D. Peron at midnight. It implemented the decree-
law issued by President Pedro E.
Aramburu Nov. 28, denouncing as unconstitutional the seizure of La Prensa and ordering its return to the Paz family.

The ministry decree ordered all
publication in the newspaper plant to cease for eight days pending a complete inventory of La Prensa's properties before they are turned over to Dr. Alberto Gainza Paz.
Gainza Paz was editor and publisher of La Prensa until it was seized in 1951 by the Peron dictatorship. He returned here from exile last week to resume control.

During its nearly five years under control of the Peronist publishing monopoly, EPASA, La Prensa
served as the official mouthpiece
of the General Confederation of Labor (CGT). Since Peron's ouster, it has been under the control of the revolutionary government.

The cease-publication decree affects some 30 other newspapers
and magazines which have been printed in the La Prensa shop
since its seizure. They include Argentina's oldest morning daily,
The Standard, which is printed in English.

UN Again Fails To Break Deadlock

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. 12-6—
The United Nations General Assembly failed again today to break
the Security Council election deadlock and its president threatened to call another meeting which he would keep in session until the issue is solved.

For the fifth time, assembly balloting left the Philippines, backed by the United States, and Yugoslavia, supported by Russia and Britain, deadlocked with neither

able to gain the two-thirds majority required for election to the council.

Seven ballots were taken today,
bringing the total to 29 since the voting began two months ago.
Cuba and Australia were elected to two of the three non-permanent seats on the first ballot Oct. 14.

McCarthy Critical Of Ford Fund

CHICAGO 12-6—Sen. Joseph R.
McCarthy (R-Wis.) listed the Ford Foundation's Fund for the Republic among the "wealthy, liberal allies" of the Communists Monday night.

McCarthy described the fund as "a vicious anti anti-Communist propaganda machine."

The Wisconsin senator charged
that the government was "subsidizing" the fund through allowing foundations to be tax exempt. The least to be done would be to require the fund to pay income taxes, he said.

The Fund for the Republic was set up by the Ford Foundation
and has been active in studies on defense of civil rights in America.
It has been widely criticized, particularly by the American Legion.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you.
Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (den-

drug counter.

Freshmen Lose At Johnston City

The Harrisburg freshmen lost their initial cage tilt to the Johnston City frosh on the JC floor last night, 73-46. The locals were ahead 13-11 at the end of the first quarter but fell behind after that. They trailed 36-28 at the end of the half and 57-49 at the end of the third period.

For Harrisburg Henshaw had 13 points, Rauh 13, Maynard 6, Pavelonis and Woolcott 4 each, Flemming 2 and Avis 1.

The locals are host to West Frankfort at 7 p. m. Dec. 15.

Stonefort Wins Two From Freeman Spur

Stonefort's grade school basketball teams won two games Monday night from Freeman Spur.

In the preliminary game Stonefort won 42-11 and took the main game 77-25.

Kansas Drubs Northwestern, 91-70; Vanderbilt Upsets OSU; Irish Lose to Badgers

By United Press

The Kansas varsity basketball team may not be able to beat the Kansas freshmen, but there's no doubt now that Coach Forrest (Phog) Allen's older team is a mighty strong outfit, anyway.

The varsity boys have been the targets of lots of jokes ever since they lost a pre-season exhibition game to the frosh squad, which is led by the fabulous Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain. But nobody laughed at them Monday night when they opened the season with an impressive 91-70 drubbing of Northwestern.

Chamberlain, the seven-foot whiz from Philadelphia drafted by a pro team before he entered college, tallied 40 points against the varsity, but no Northwestern player could come near that.

The Jayhawks, pre-season favorites for the Big Seven championship and rated No. 17 nationally by the United Press Board of Coaches, drove to a 47-38 halftime lead and breezed home as four players scored in double figures, led by forward Gene Elston with 19. Guard Dick Mast had 20 for Northwestern.

Duquesne Wins Opener

Duquesne, rated No. 8 and last year's National Invitation tournament champion, also made a successful season debut Monday night with a 61-25 rout of Carnegie Tech. All-America Si Green tallied 22 points.

Robin Freeman of Ohio State and Lloyd Aubrey of Notre Dame turned in two of Monday night's most brilliant performances, but neither could save his team from defeat.

Freeman, popping one-handers from the side, racked up 15 baskets and 10 free throws for 40 points but Ohio State bowed on its home court to tall, sharpshooting Vanderbilt, 76-67. The Commodores, used only six players and were led by Al Rochelle with 23 points.

Center Aubrey of Notre Dame notched 13 baskets and nine free throws for 35 points but the Irish took their second straight beating, 70-66, from Wisconsin. Dick Miller led Wisconsin with 25 points.

In other leading games Monday night: Memphis State handed the Texas Aggies their second straight loss, 84-71; Niagara was pressed to score its second win, 66-59, over Toledo; Boston College trounced Suffolk, 89-73; Tulane romped over Louisiana College, 94-61; Louisiana State downed Southwest Tennessee, 72-59; Missouri ripped Texas Tech, 62-40; Colorado trounced Oregon, 68-49; and Rice defeated Lamar Tech, 70-49.

Looking At Sports

By BILL MELTON

Jon Frohock, 607 North Main street, Harrisburg, is the first champion of our "you pick 'em" contest in the 1955-56 basketball season.

Jon picked nine of the ten games correctly and was fairly close on the score of the game of the week. He gave the West Frankfort-Johnston City score to be 56-40 in favor of West Frankfort. WF won 57-48.

The only miss on young Frohock's list was brought about by McLeansboro's victory over Mt. Carmel. But Jon was not alone when he missed calling McLeansboro's win. Of all the entries received, only Dick Lehr of Bridgeport called that particular game correctly.

Want to say "Thanks" to all of you who entered our basketball contest last week—the first of this season. We were very pleased with the fine response from Shawneetown—received more entries from the Gallatin county seat town than any other. And by the way, all of the fans down that way picked the Indians to win.

Below is the blank for the "you pick 'em" contest for this week, listing ten of the top games to be played Friday and Saturday, Dec. 9 and 10. Just select a winner in each of the ten games listed, give a score for the "game of the week", get your completed entry blank to The Register sports desk before 5 p. m. Friday and you are a full fledged contestant.

More Students Angered by Ruling in Georgia

ATLANTA — Students at Emory university and the University of Georgia, angered because a new segregation sports policy will hurt Georgia teams' reputations, burned Gov. Marvin Griffin in effigy on two fronts late Monday night.

They were the third and fourth institutions to burn the governor in effigy since Griffin asked the State Board of Regents to prevent Georgia Tech from meeting Pittsburgh, which has a Negro player, in the Sugar Bowl.

The new demonstrations broke out a few hours after the regents adopted a compromise racial policy that will allow Tech to play in the Sugar Bowl Jan. 2, but probably bar state-supported schools from future integration in Southern football games.

There was widespread fear that the new policy would doom both Georgia and Georgia Tech, which together have been to 14 major bowl games in the past 15 years, as national football powers.

Some 500 University of Georgia students, who usually save their wrath for rival Tech in sports competition, held a sympathy demonstration late Monday night on the Athens, Ga., campus and burned the governor in effigy.

About the same time, some 25 persons burned an effigy of the governor on the library steps at Emory university, a Methodist-supported college in Atlanta, which fields no football team.

Students at Mercer university, a Baptist-supported school in Macon, Ga., also had burned the governor in effigy.

Grant Asylum to Soviet Officer

BERLIN — The U. S. Army granted political asylum today to a Soviet tank officer who fled to West Berlin from his Red army unit in the Soviet Zone.

The Army identified the officer as Lt. Ivan Vacelevich Ovchinnikov, 26, of a Soviet army unit stationed at Stahnsdorf near West Berlin.

The Army said Ovchinnikov fled across the border Monday in full uniform and turned himself over to West Berlin police at Wanne railway station in the American sector. He was unarmed.

San Francisco Tops Kentucky, North Carolina State in Cage Ratings

NEW YORK — It's a brand new college basketball season with the same old 1954-55 theme. San Francisco, last year's national champion, was placed in a class by itself today in the first weekly ratings of the United Press Board of Coaches.

All but three of the 35 outstanding coaches who comprise the United Press rating board picked the Dons No. 1 in the nation following a pair of weekend victories. San Francisco's point-total of 343 was only seven short of a perfect score.

After a 70-39 breeze against Chico State in which they used All-America center Bill Russell only sparingly, the Dons displayed their customary defense-minded mastery Saturday night in a 58-42 victory over Southern California, a much stronger opponent.

The two victories stretched San Francisco's winning streak to 28 games. The Dons had a 28-1 record in 1954-55 when they compiled the best defensive record in the nation, won the NCAA tournament, and earned the No. 1 rating of the United Press Board of Coaches.

Picked To Repeat

Last week, before the opening games of the season, the coaches overwhelmingly picked San Francisco to repeat at national champion.

Of the three coaches who did not cast first-place votes for the West Coasters this week, two picked them second and one fourth. One voted third-ranked North Carolina State No. 1, one voted for seventh-ranked Illinois, and the other picked 13th-ranked St. Louis.

Kentucky, traditionally a strong challenger for national honors, ranked second, 94 points behind San Francisco. Coach Adolph Rupp's Wildcats, picked No. 2 in the pre-season ratings, opened

Honus Wagner, Baseball Great, Dies at Age 81

PITTSBURGH — John Peter (Honus) Wagner, whose iron exploits with the Pittsburgh Pirates made him baseball's "greatest shortstop of all time," died early today at his home in nearby Carnegie at the age of 81.

The famed "Flying Dutchman" died in his sleep at 12:56 a. m. At his bedside were his wife Bessie, his daughter-in-law, brother-in-law and other intimates of the family.

Wagner, who had been ill in recent years, made his last public appearance April 30 when he attended the unveiling of an 18-foot, 40-ton bronze statue erected in his honor just beyond the left field wall at Forbes Field. He had been bedridden since last September when he injured his hip in a fall at his home.

The Hall of Fame hero with the peculiar bowlegged stance was one of baseball's legendary figures. He led the National league in batting eight times and was a 300-plus hitter for 17 straight seasons. He set records which are still intact and at which players have been aiming in vain for nearly half a century.

Honus spent 18 full seasons with the Pirates after coming here from Louisville in 1900. He starred in 100 or more games for both Louisville and Pittsburgh for 19 years.

Although one of baseball's greatest players and top drawing cards, he never got more than $10,000 a year for his services.

During his spectacular career, Wagner stole 720 bases, paced the National league in extra base hits seven years, led in triples five years and was first in doubles eight seasons. He played in 2,785 games, posted a .329 lifetime batting average, made 4,320 putouts and 5,664 assists. He had only 612 errors for a .943 fielding average during his 21-year major league career.

Ex-Convict Admits Strangling His Landlady

CHICAGO — A remorseful ex-convict has admitted the strangling of one middle-aged Chicago area woman but has been cleared in the similar strangling of another, police said today.

Steve J. Pafco, 34, gave himself up Monday and confessed that he killed Mrs. Ruth Beal, 50, in a fit of rage at her suburban Harvey home last Friday, police said.

Mrs. Beal had ordered him from the house because of indecent literature found in his room. He said he returned Friday to pay money he owed for telephone calls and they began arguing again.

"She said I had an indecent, filthy mind," police quoted Pafco as saying. "Then she started screaming. I guess I lost my head. I slapped her across the face and grabbed her."

"Then I guess I strangled her."

KNOCKOUT DROPS

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Of the last eight bouts in which the midweight championship has changed hands, only two have gone the distance.

BIG TEN LEADERS

CHICAGO — (NEA) — Purdue and Wisconsin divide the all-time Big Ten leadership in basketball titles, each having won six and shared in seven others.

their season with a 62-52 victory over Louisiana State.

North Carolina State, which won two games a week, ranked third followed in order by Utah, Iowa and Dayton. After them came Illinois, Duquesne, Holy Cross and Brigham Young to round out the top 10.

Selected By Coaches

With points distributed on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis for votes from first to 10th places, Kentucky had 249 points, N. C. State 239, Utah 225, Iowa 200, Dayton 115, Illinois 84, Duquesne 67, Holy Cross 48 and Brigham Young 44.

Brigham Young, overlooked in the coaches' pre-season sizeup, was placed 10th after impressive 75-58 and 67-65 weekend victories over UCLA, a team picked in a tie for seventh place in the early forecast.

George Washington headed the second group, trailed in order by Indiana, St. Louis, UCLA, Marquette, Stanford, Kansas, Alabama, Seton Hall and Louisville.

Muller Wins 10-Round Decision Over Ray Drake

NEW YORK — German middleweight Peter Muller, regarded as a ring clown in some quarters, turned serious today and apologized for his unanimous 10-round decision over Ray Drake of New York Monday night at St. Nicholas Arena.

"Maybe I didn't look too good," he explained, "but all that Drake did was clutch and grab. I should be better for my next fight."

Muller has a date with welterweight Vince Martinez of Paterson, N. J., at Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 29, and probably will be rewarded with another nationally televised appearance at ancient St. Nick's late next month.

Although wild on occasions, Muller landed enough solid blows Monday night to earn votes of all three officials. Judges Harold Barnes and Al Singer each scored the fight 6-3-1 in favor of the chesty German, while referee Joe Lo Scalzo voted 5-4-1.

Carrier Mills Romps To 105-58 Win Over Muddy in Loop Game

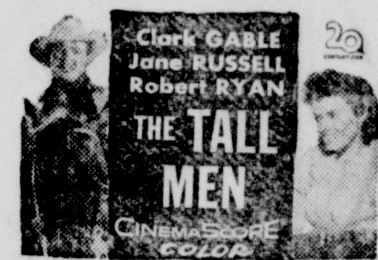

The Carrier Mills grade school cagers romped to a 105-58 victory over Muddy in a Midget conference game Monday night. The game was played at Carrier Mills.

In the preliminary game CM won 31-25.

Scoring in the main game—Carrier Mills: Taborn 35, Shaw 38, VanHoy 16, Fitts 8, Shelton 4, Williams 2 and Holmes 2; Muddy: Corneshe 10, Murphy 4, Penrod 21, Beasley 3, Mahaffey 6 and Podarski 14.

There was a young maple tree in full leaf at the end of the lane. It gave shade against the sun and Jered Naish tied the horse to it after he and Phoebe got down from the carriage. His need to be alone with her had made him suggest that they drive out from Salem this afternoon, and she wasn't dressed for a walk on the beach. But she had already started thru the crab grass and he followed.

Phoebe wore the sort of dress that was correct to receive him in her father's garden. It was, because of the almost unseasonal June heat, of thin mouseline de soie, emerald in shade.

"Slow up," he said; he wanted to see her turn and smile. "You walk too fast for a sailor."

"Shall I haul you, slow-poke?" She held out a hand to him, and he laughed aloud out of sheer joy. "We're a prim couple to pass as beachcombers," he said.

"You're right," she said. "Wait, Jerry, while I take off my slippers and stockings."

She stripped the stockings and she put them and the slippers in his coat pockets without word. His temptation was to seize her, to kiss her, the longing of the year of absence suddenly dominant. But hold on, man. You have time.

They walked the sand close to the water's edge. "You're still prim, Captain. Won't you join me at a bit of paddle foot?"

He bent down at once and slid out of his elastic-sided gaiters, his socks, rolled up his trousers.

"You love me?" she said softly.

"I adore you," he said and rose and took her by the shoulders.

"Darling, darling," she whispered. She walked on down the beach.

He hurried along the beach to Phoebe. She stood holding a gray, marvelously smooth piece of driftwood. "Look, Jerry," she said.

"From where do you think it's come?"

He jerked around to stare at the horizon. "Out there, somewhere."

But on the horizon, illuminated clearly in the coruscant glow, he saw a ship's sails. He recognized them, and the masts and the hull. The hatred left him, replaced by pride.

"She's the Bantu," he said. "Sailed a week ahead of us from Shanghai."

Phoebe lightly clasped his arm. She had dropped the piece of driftwood to the sand. "Men like you," she said, "have brought the two halves of the world together."

"I don't agree," he said stubbornly.

"Look at my dress," she said,

"even your coat. The Oriental fashion's strong in both of them, and has held Salem for 40 years. Your sailors have carried the East to us in your ships."

He had noticed before that she was dressed in Chinese silk. He had bought the stuff at Whang-poo. Silks, spices, teas, jade, ivory, precious woods. The ships that had sailed those cargoes had given Salem its wealth and he was the master of one of the best of them.

Naish kissed her. "You're sure," he said, "the marriage will come off without any flip-flap?"

"Three weeks from tomorrow, dear heart," she said. "The only thing that's delayed it has been mother's sickness."

She smoothed her hands down his back and then openly retreated from him. "No more of this. I simply can't stand it, Jerry. Let's get on home. And do remember that you've been back just four days and propose to be around quite some time before you go to sea again."

"Very well," he said. Still, when they were in the carriage and riding in along the Neck towards the white town, magenta-shaded now in the advance of the dusk, he let himself express his most secret thought. "You shouldn't be marrying a sailor."

"Jered, Jered," she said, "the sea's your trade."

"But ever since I've been home," he said, "all I've heard is how trade has spread inland. The Massachusetts coast began to be forgotten after Mr. Jefferson's war. Half the lads who went to school with me have become lawyers or engineers, not sailors."

"Father's told me that you cleared an average of $24 a cargo ton on your voyage. You're ashamed of that?"

"No, I can't be, in honesty."

They were turning into Chestnut Street towards her home and he felt an odd stifled sensation; people appeared to watch them from every doorway. Yet he was aware that he must finish this. He checked the horse's trot at the stable gate and said quietly, "Then I promise you that I'll retire by 30. Other men have."

"You will," she said, and squeezed his fingers as she stepped down onto the carriage block. "I have no doubt at all. Don't be long in the stable, though. You're invited to supper and I'll make you a drink first."

Despite his conscious intention, he slowed on the garden lawn in back of the house after he had left the horse and carriage with the coachman. A pastel spread of shadows was drawn over it and it had lost the precise, formal contour it possessed in the daytime.

It was here, he remembered, that Phoebe had brought him the first night he met her in the role of a grown young lady. That had been at a reception at Hamilton Hall. He'd been 18 and newly second mate in the brig George and she a couple of months over 17. Fresh in from Calcutta, he had made a good bit of a fool out of himself at the reception. He had asked her to dance a polka with him, immediately and clumsily trod upon the hem of her frock and ripped a great hunk loose from it.

But Phoebe had marvelously responded. "I think I should like a breath of air," she told him. "Do walk out with me, Mr. Second Mate."

When they reached the garden he was trembling sober. "Thank you ever so much," he said in a choked voice. "You're more than nice, in fact downright decent. I've wrecked your frock and your evening, too."

"Don't be silly," she said. "I'll hop in the kitchen and get us some tea, then you can tell me all about Calcutta, the burning ghats and the rest."

When she came back and they had drunk the tea, he told her very simply that he loved her.

"Could you love me?" he said.

"Yes," she said; "oh, yes, Jered!" They went in and sat upon the gazebo bench until an upstairs window rattled and she heard her mother's cough.

Four years, Jered Naish thought. From second mate of the George to master in the Mercury. A long haul, but Phoebe's been with you all the way.

The house impressed him as it always did when he entered it. He halted inside the all Palladian window that opened upon the garden and looked around him while from the hall Phoebe called back that she would be with him directly with his drink. The place was one of a number built for the Salem wealthy by Samuel McIntire in the last few years. It was of Flemish-laid brick in contrast to the old style of white clapboard. The interior contained many family pieces very much identical to those in his own home.

Capt. Sam Proctor and his father had been partners for some years. Yet Phoebe's father wasn't the kind to spend anything except a fractional whack of what he owned upon a house. For certain, Captain Sam was by a lot the

Stratton Shows Off New Office Building to 7,500

SPRINGFIELD 48—Gov. William G. Stratton and other state officials showed off the gleaming new State Office Building to more than 7,500 visitors Monday night.

The visitors wandered about the big 8 1/2 story, 11 1/2 million dollar structure at its official open house.

Secretary of State Charles F. Carpenter, who is custodian of the state capital group of buildings, donned a white chef's jacket for the occasion.

He served the first bowl of bean soup to Stratton in the basement cafeteria. The cafeteria will be operated by the same firm which operates the U. S. Senate restaurant in Washington.

Open house visitors were served free coffee and doughnuts.

Stratton called the structure the "finest building" any state has provided to house government functions.

richer of the two in order to spread himself like this.

Phoebe came with a tray that bore rum and Madeira. He was slightly surprised, yet pleased when she poured some of the Madeira for herself. "To us," she said.

"To you," he said, "my darling."

Rule Bingo Pinball Machines Subject To Gambling Tax

CHICAGO (UP)—"Bingo" pinball machines which pay off in money are slot machines in disguise, a federal judge ruled Monday.

Judge John P. Barnes made the ruling in fining tavern owner Walter Korpan, 40, of Fox Lake $750 on charges of operating pinball machines without purchasing a federal gambling stamp.

The judge watched federal agents working the machines in his courtroom and concluded:

"The element of skill was reduced to the minimum. The skill consisted of the amount of force used in moving the marbles or tilting the machine. Nothing remained of any consequence except the element of chance."

The machines on which Barnes based his ruling have squares filled with numbers on a backboard. A winning combination consists of lighting a series of numbers.

Asst. U. S. Atty. William A. Barnett called Korpan's arrest a test case. The government expects to obtain $250,000 to $500,000 in annual gambling stamp revenues from Lake County alone, he said.

Use Free Labels to Speed Christmas Mail, Hetherington Says

Here's an easy way you can help the post office and yourself too, during the Christmas mail rush, Postmaster A. M. Hetherington stated today. Get free labels from the post office reading "All for local delivery" and "All for out-of-state delivery." Then divide your Christmas cards into two groups, face them all the same way and attach the proper label to each group.

Be sure you use first-class postage and try to mail all of your out-of-state Christmas cards by Dec. 10 and all cards for local delivery at least a week before Christmas. Remember you can include written messages when your Christmas cards go by first class mail and they will be forwarded if the addressee has moved or they will be returned to you if the addressee cannot be located.

You can avoid disappointment to friends and loved ones at Christmastime if you will take a little extra care with your Christmas mailings right now, Hetherington says.

Strangers—with a Mutual Friend!

Anyone who owns and drives a Cadillac will find this a familiar scene.

For it is not at all unusual for Cadillac owners to salute one another as they pass on the highway . . . or to exchange approving nods as they wait for the traffic light to change.

Cadillac owners, you see, know that they have at least one mutual friend . . . in the Cadillac car.

And the chances are that if these two motorists were to meet, they would find they had a great deal more in common than just their affection for the "car of cars."

For Cadillac owners, taking them by and large, are people who share a keen appreciation for the finer things in life.

And, generally speaking, they are people of unusual practical wisdom . . . who have found in Cadillac the most economical means to the finest end in motordom.

They have learned, for instance, how reasonable a Cadillac can be insofar as original cost is concerned—actually within a few dollars of many "medium-priced" cars.

They have seen for themselves how economical a Cadillac is to operate through the miles . . . and how wonderfully dependable it is through the months and through the years.

And they have savored that final reward for choosing the "car of cars"—Cadillac's extraordinary resale value.

Perhaps, in view of these remarkable facts, the time has come for you to meet this wonderful friend of America's most demanding motorists.

We'll be delighted to introduce you at any time you find convenient—and to supervise a personal demonstration on the highway.
